This page contains a handwritten musical score, likely for a piano or organ. The score is written on 18 staves, arranged in a single system. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, beams, and dynamic markings. The handwriting is in ink and appears to be from the 19th or early 20th century. The score is divided into measures by vertical bar lines. There are some corrections and erasures visible, particularly in the middle section. The page number '162' is written in the top left corner. The overall layout is dense and typical of a composer's manuscript.

I

This image shows a page of handwritten musical notation on aged, yellowed paper. The page is numbered '138' in the top right corner and marked with a large 'I' at the top center. The notation is organized into two main systems, each containing multiple staves. The upper system consists of approximately 12 staves, while the lower system consists of approximately 10 staves. The notation includes various musical symbols such as notes, rests, beams, and clefs. There are also some markings that appear to be lyrics or performance instructions written below the staves. The paper shows signs of age, including discoloration and some faint smudges.

This is a handwritten musical score on two systems of staves. The notation is in ink and appears to be from a 19th-century manuscript. The first system consists of eight staves, with the first four staves containing dense, dark markings that could be either heavy ink or a specific notation. The second system also consists of eight staves, with the first four staves containing similar dense markings. The right side of the manuscript features several measures of musical notation with notes, rests, and dynamic markings. The handwriting is somewhat cursive and the ink is dark, typical of a fountain pen or quill. The paper is aged and slightly discolored.
